WASHINGTON. Dec. 22.—After a conference with Surgeon General Rutherford B. Hayes, today Congressman E. B. Howard wired to Governor Robertson of Oklahoma that the public health service has adequate facilities to handle any tubercular cases among ex-service men in Oklahoma.

It will care for all Oklahomans applying for treatment at either Demarest, N. M., or Whipple Barracks and also the old Shawnee school to treat Oklahoma tuberculars but the public health service says that the facilities at the other two tubercular sanatoriums are adequate for all needs.

Tulans are urged to rally to the support of the tuberculosis seal sale at only a few days remain until Christmas and the minimum quota necessary to carry on the work in the county during the coming year has not yet been reached. Fine work was done by the local tuberculosis association during the year just past though only the most simple organization was maintained throughout the year for greater activities with the least possible expenditure of funds. REVIEWS POST TREND.

The movement inaugurated at that time to gain control over the cost of living has been largely in the hands of the department of justice. It should be helpful to point out what has already been accomplished and what further steps are in contemplation. To assess the situation it is necessary to look back over the year. The trend of prices has been in the page next.

"Taking retail food prices as a base, the index number of the United States bureau of labor statistics from 1911 to 1919 indicate that up to 1918 there has been a noticeable trend upward in such prices in the fall of the year, whereas since 1918, up to such recent date, prices have been kept approximately stationary. By way of illustration, during the period August to November inclusive, 1918, there was an advance in retail food prices as indicated by the bureau of labor statistics of 18 points, in 1917, 18 points, and in 1918, 18 points, as compared with the increase whatever in the corresponding period of 1919. Considerable attention has been given to the year 1919, indicating a slight upward trend in such prices as of October 1 to October 1. A greater upward trend from October 1 to November 1, and remained practically stationary from November 1 to December 1.

"During the four years from 1915 to 1918, inclusive, retail food prices show a decided upward trend from August 1 to September 1 and October 1 to November 1, and a decided upward trend from November 1 to December 1. This year, during September and October, an actual reduction in the general level of retail prices was effected as compared with August, while the figure for November, although slightly above that of October, shows an increase above that of August returns.

In other words, the official data clearly shows the significant character of the leveling off of retail prices as no greater in November of this year than it was in August, while during former years, extending back to 1911, the returns for November show a considerably increase over the August returns."

The history of retail food prices indicates that a decided downward trend ordinarily may be expected in the future to do effectively with all classes business men of all classes.

While waiting the enactment of legislation, however, the representing the different trade associations, which are main inactive, Section 5 of the act provides a penalty for hoarding and rationing which has not a maximum limit. Section 7 authorizes the seizure and seizure and money not used to stop the upward sale of hoarded necessities since the law was amended to provide against price increases.

The National Retail Clothing Association has recently issued a circular to its members, published right now, to give us a good idea of what our membership, especially in the retail clothing dealers of America. They have also appointed advisers to help up profits within their membership and report to the United States attorney in their respective districts information on the rights of protection set up by their organization. These advisers and if all honest people will talk with the department of justice in stamping out profiteering and hoarding.

"Primarily the penalties provided in the law of 1919 are the needed incentive to production, the elimination of extravagance and the determined hunting down of profiteers of all classes. I believe that the time has come when the organization of the National Retail Clothing Association has been completed to the point where real results can be shown.
